Austin Telco Federal Credit Union Selects SYNC1 Systems' Loan Origination System to Take Them to the Next Level

AUSTIN, TX / ACCESSWIRE / August 8, 2023 / Austin Telco Federal Credit Union recently selected Sync1 Systems' LOS (loan origination system) solution for improving its workflow and increasing automation in its lending process. The credit union was looking for a partner that understood its business requirements and the credit union lending industry that they could grow with well into the future. Additionally, increasing automation with its other technology providers was key

"Sync1 was very accommodating to our requests during the vendor vetting process. Knowing their history, past performance, and seeing the configurability and ease of the end-user experience helped us with the selection process. We also appreciate the CUSO model and feel confident they will continue to enhance the functionality as we progress in an ever-changing lending environment. It feels more like a partnership than a vendor relationship, and we look forward to improving our members' experiences," stated Tony Rawls, SVP of Lending/CLO.

As Sync1 Systems' financial technology is incorporated into the loan application process, it allows credit unions to spin up new lending products quickly and easily. Sync1 Systems' LOS enables configuration for individual loan application processes, and its open API architecture saves credit unions time while providing a seamless and convenient experience for members.

"We are very excited to have Austin Telco join the Sync1 family. We have known many of their leadership and staff for several years and are so glad we will be a part of their growth and help improve their lending process. I know they will also bring excellent ideas to our product team to continue to enhance and make our solution the best in class. We look forward to serving them, as they serve their members, and being great partners well into the future," added Steve Maloney, CEO of Sync1 Systems.
